NUMBER 310

The new military bill has become a law, and the military boys are happy.

It is about time there was another "outbreak" at Princeton College. The boys there are not maintaining their reputation.

Congressman Dugro, of New York, is only 25 years old, and is the youngest member in the House. His wife is only 20.

The storm which began yesterday afternoon and continued long into the night, extended all over the Northwest, but did not do much damage.

Ex-Governor Fairchild will remain in Milwaukee from Saturday to Monday at the Plankinton house—where he will receive a large number of friends.

Mrs. Ole Bull wants the Legislature to purchase her residence for $15,000, and use it for an executive mansion. Judging by the temper of the present Legislature, the sale will not be made this year.

Mr. Seville will soon abandon the hopeless case of his brother, and will take the road as a political evangelist. If Seville wants to appear in the role of a reformer, he should abandon the case and pay his own debts.

Brady, ex-Assistant Postmaster General, and chief of the star route conspirators, has had his bail fixed at $20,000. The bail on the other cases, some twelve in number, has been fixed at from $1,000 to $5,000.

The Rev. William M. Taylor, D. D., of the Broadway Tabernacle, New York, receives a salary of $16,000 a year, and it is suggested by the Chicago Tribune, that the congregation does not sing the hymn which speaks about salvation being free.

The last step in regard to the biennial session, has been taken by the Legislature. The Assembly by a unanimous vote, concurred for the second time in the amendments, and the first session under the new system will be held in 1883.

The Legislature of Iowa has taken a very important step toward female suffrage in that State. It has passed a resolution for a constitutional amendment striking the word "male" out of the State constitution. It will need to pass another Legislature before the amendment can be submitted to the people. Iowa is full of warm blood and progressive ideas, and may adopt the amendment.

It turns out, as might have been expected, that the report that Jesse James was captured, and had seven bullet holes through him, is a canard. It is hard work to get a story of his capture to stick. A man who can rob the Kansas City Exposition in broad day light, paralyze and rob a train load of passengers, and register at the finest hotel in St. Louis, accompanied by his beautiful wife, is not apt to be the man who will be caught.

The Democratic party in Indiana is for sale—to the highest bidder. For a time the leader of the party hoped that the factional quarrels would destroy the Republican party, but their hopes are blasted, and now the Democrats are looking to the Anti-Prohibition party to restore them to power. They are willing to make their platform to suit any opposition to the Republican party, if that opposition will give the Democrats its vote. The Democrats will not make a profitable sale.

The Evening Wisconsin of Thursday says: "A private letter received in this city says John G. Saxé, the satirist, will come to Milwaukee during the approaching spring and summer, for the purpose of parading of the mineral waters of this vicinity. Mr. Saxé was for some time a partner in the newspaper business in Vermont with George H. Paul, of this city, and the half-wrecked poet has many other old-time friends and acquaintances in this vicinity. His health is now almost destroyed, and he is subject to fits and melancholy."

The condition of United States Senator Ben Hill is very low and his recovery is doubtful. The glands on the right side of his neck have been removed in the hope of eradicating the cancer, but there is little prospect that it will be successful. He himself realizes this, and is resigned to whatever may be the result. In addition to this a dispatch has been sent out from Washington, which says: "It is generally understood among Senators that Ben Hill's malady is mortal, and he cannot live much longer."

It was announced in several papers yesterday that John B. Gough had canceled his lecturing engagements on account of his voice being in a bad condition. The Chicago Journal says there is not a particle of truth in the report. The New York Tribune is authority for the statement that his last engagement for the present season will be filled in Baltimore, about the first of next month, and he will then, it is reported, retire permanently from the lecture field, in which he has been so prominent a figure for forty years.

Special to the Gazette.

ASSEMBLY.

MADISON, March 10.—In the Assembly the committee on ways and means reported $227,297 of trust funds now in the State treasury.

A large number of leaves of absence have been asked for, but objection being made, the Assembly adjourned till evening.

SENATE.

In the Senate a bill was passed for the settlement of claims of the United States against the State.

The bill was concurred in amending the militia law, allowing annual encampments.

Prohibiting the importation into the State of diseased cattle and swine.

The Senate voted to adjourn till next Monday night.

THE BETHESDA SPRINGS.

WATKESHA, Wis., March 9.—The stockholders in the Bethesda Mineral Spring company—the new company which now controls the wonderful springs—met here to-day and elected the following officers.

President—Richard Guenther. Vice President—Winfield Smith. Treasurer—Phil L. Spooner. Secretary and Manager—D. L. Sterling.

Directors—Richard Guenther, of Oshkosh, member of Congress for the Sixth district; Phil L. Spooner, United States Senator from Wisconsin; Hon. Winfield Smith, of Milwaukee; Major F. W. Oakley, of Madison; Phil L. Spooner, insurance commissioner, of Wisconsin.

The company has determined upon making extended improvements upon its Bethesda Spring property, and to make it more than ever before the great summer resort of the West.

HALE'S NEWS.

Hop Bitter, which are advertised in our columns, are a sure cure for ague, biliousness and kidney complaints. Those who use them say they cannot be too highly recommended. Those afflicted should give them a fair trial, and will become thereby enthusiastic in the praise of their curative qualities.—Portland Ad.

MR. SAWYER'S INQUIRY.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Senator Sawyer, of Wisconsin, has returned to the city, and was in his seat in the Senate to-day. He introduced a resolution of inquiry intended to bring out all the facts in connection with the expense of building the Sturgeon Bay ship canal, and the receipts from the sale of the land grant in Wisconsin.

His idea is to place such information before Congress as will form a forcible argument in favor of opening the canal to the lake commerce free. His resolution directs the Secretary of War to obtain the facts indicated, and to report at the next session of Congress. The measure presented itself in such a favorable light that it was adopted by the Senate at once.

BEATS TANNER.

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind., March 9.—A postal-card from the county asylum received at noon to-day reports Mrs. Mary Herman still alive, but very feeble, and her death may be looked for at any moment. She is now on the fifty-sixth day of her fast. The case excites a good deal of interest in the neighborhood of the asylum. People go there in droves to see the fasting woman. Every effort to induce her to partake of food has proved unavailing. She is very petulant and refuses to talk or be disturbed. It is certainly a remarkable case. Here is a woman, a bending every effort of her will to bring on a dissolution, and yet after fifty-five days she still lives. Tanner fasted forty days, with a strong will to live, and though he was doing a great thing.

GAMBLERS.

MILWAUKEE, March 9.—The gamblers of this city feel bad about a scooping at the hands of Fond du Lac gamblers.

Four deus were closed by the "deal," and it is alleged between $10,000 and $15,000 were carried off by the outsiders. The "banks" cannot open immediately, and the gamblers now hide their heads to escape "the laugh" from acquaintances.

THE STAR ROUTE.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Thomas J. Brady, ex-Assistant Postmaster General, was to-day held by the criminal court of this District in $20,000 bail in the matter of the numerous indictments against him for conspiracy to defraud the government. His counsel sneered at the charges, called the indictment "that paper," and suggested that $1,000 was quite enough bail for such a charge, but Judge Wylie, a type of an honest judge—a man who is not to be trifled with—said the gravity of the charge was greatly underrated by the defense. There was a party holding a position of trust, and he was charged with violating that trust. Whether the charge could be sustained was a question, but for the present he would regard it as true. It was trifling to suggest such a sum as $1,000, and he thought that the amount asked by the Government was not excessive. The amount would be $20,000. The smaller fry who have been indicted gave bail in $1,000 each.

FINAL PASSAGE.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The Senate, after another day's discussion, passed the Chinese immigration bill by a vote of 29 to 15.

ARSON AND MURDER.

FOND DU LAC, March 9.—Last night a case was developed in this city which has not only a strong savor of arson in it, but which also appears greatly like murder. During last week a case was in progress, wherein it was alleged that Charles M. Woodward had perjured himself on testimony given in a court of this city, the witness against him being his alleged paramour, Lucretia A. McNeil. There occurred trouble between the two, and in conversation, the woman McNeil made it known that there was more against Woodward than stealing blankets, upon which he had been discharged, and referred eventually to the mysterious burning of a building in this city in September, 1878. The proper authorities at once took the matter up and revived the following history of an event that created great excitement at the time: On the 18th day of September, 1878, at about 1 o'clock a. m., a small building located on the corner of Brook and McWilliam streets was burned. It was occupied by John McNeil, the owner of the building, a woman named Legar, alias Phelan, and a named soldier, named George Hewins. Hewins was burned to death, and the coroner's jury returned a verdict according to the facts elicited in the testimony: That he came to his death by accidental burning or injury. Strong suspicion rested upon the woman, however, her reputation being bad, and a brother of the unfortunate Hewins came to this city from Jefferson and tried to solve the mystery at the time of the inquest, but examination only made suspicion stronger that the woman and McNeil knew more of the burning than they testified to. The woman referred to as Legar, alias Phelan, is dead. Since then the matter has been at rest, but is now revived by the swearing out of a warrant by the daughter of the woman McNeil, charging Chas. M. Woodward with the murder of George Hewins, and Woodward was promptly arrested by Sheriff Matson and Bloom. The prisoner was this afternoon taken before Justice Guldstocker for examination, F. F. Duffy, district attorney, appearing for the State and Henry J. Gerphide for the defense, when it appeared that the defense was ready, and that the State required more time, whereupon the examination was adjourned until the 16th inst.

A PECULIAR PEOPLE.

Queer Ways of Living on the Western Banks—Hogs and Cattle.

[From the Raleigh News and Observer.] The people of this region live on an amphibious life, and live so much on and in the water that most of them, I am sure, are web-footed. They live mainly on fish, clams, oysters, crabs, terrapins and wild fowl. When they leave home they go in a boat, and whether they go to court or go courting, or to trade, or to the mill, or to a funeral, they always go by sail. Their corn-mills are run by sails, and some of them pump their water with windmills. They don't go upstairs, but "go aloft," and when they go to bed they "turn in;" when they are ill they are "under the weather," and when in robust health they say they are "hung up and big free." They speak of a trim-built sweetheart as "clippier built." If she is a little stout they say she is "broad in the beam," or she is "wide across the transom." Many of them have ships' cabin doors in their houses, that slide on grooves, and to their buildings they give a coating of tar instead of painting them. The "old woman" blows a conch-shell when dinner is ready, and they measure time by "bells." Their babies are not rocked in cradles, but swung in hammocks. They chew black pig-tail tobacco and drink a wild tea called "Yeopon." They manure their land with sea-grass and bury their yam potatoes in the sand hills. When they want a doctor they hang a red flag against a hillside as a signal of distress. If he don't come, because the "wind ain't fair," they take a dram of whisky and copperas, soak their feet in sea water, "turn in," and trust to luck. If they die they will be buried on the top of a sand ridge, and when you see several sail boats on the water in procession, with a flag at half mast, you are looking at a funeral.

They ornament their houses with whales' ribs and jaws, sharks' teeth, swordfish snouts, devilfish arms, sawfish swords (six feet long), miniature ships, camp-wood chests, Honduras gourds, spy-glasses, South American lizards, war clubs from the Mozambique islands.

For aught we know these queer, sandal-wood boxes, Chinese chessmen, Japanese faces, Madagascar idols, Australian boomerangs and other strange, outlandish things, their hogs are raised on clams, mussels, the offal of fish and garbage, and their cattle wade out on the shoals for miles, where the water covers their backs, to feed on sea grass, and if they are carried up-country and fed on corn and fodder they will not live.

Every man is Captain of some kind of a boat, and "she" is always better than any other boat in some way. "She is hard to beat in a gale of wind," or "before the wind," or "boating to windward," or "with the wind on the beam," or "she can sail closer to the wind," or "will carry sail longest," or "hard to beat in a light wind," or "totes more stock," or is "stronger," or "drier," or "bigger," or "she is a big little boat," or "draws the least water," or "needs less ballast," or "she is the newest," or "has the best timbers," or "steers the best," or "she is a lucky boat," or "stands up better," or "needs less sail than any other boat," or "she is best for fishing," etc. Perhaps "she comes about better than any other boat." She is bound to have something about her better than anybody else's boat.

Accuracy.

Every boy and girl should determine to be accurate. In studying lessons be sure to get the exact meaning; in talking, state the truth of the thing; in working do everything just right. I have lately heard of two boys who worked in the same store. Their duties were alike, and they were required to be at the store at half-past 7 in the morning. John was always there on the minute, or a few minutes before the time; James came the same number of minutes after. When John arranged the goods in the window they were accurately marked and priced; James forgot to put the number on or priced them incorrectly.

These are only two of the things which marked the distinction between the two boys. But every day and week they grew further apart, John doing the work accurately, and therefore well; James slighting all conveniently could. John was promoted for carefulness in his duties. James was warned to alter his manner and finally discharged. The accurate boy grew to be a wealthy, self-made man. Men liked to deal with him; they were sure of being treated fairly. James tried several positions, but lost them on account of his inaccuracy in little details, and though he gets through the world somehow, he has not the happiness and success which with the same opportunities John achieved.

There are many things that tend to make a noble character. Place accuracy high in the list.—School Journal.

Love-Making in a Beer Garden.

Making love in a beer garden is liable to be carried on under disadvantages and subject to interruptions more or less disagreeable. The other night a young man sitting with his sweetheart in a garden over the Rhine was endeavoring to pour a tale of love into her listening ear, which the shrill cries incident to the locality were continually interrupting. The courtship ran something after this fashion:

"Dearest Eliza, you know that your image alone holds a place within my heart. I thrill only to the soft tone of your sweet voice; I am happy in no company but yours. In short, better than life do I love—"

"Zwi beer!"

"As I was saying, before you caiff beer-jerker passed this way with his discordant ejaculation, I am indissolubly yours. The stars are never bright unless you are by my side, yet your eyes do ever shame their brightness. I see no beauty in the flowers until your presence blesses me, and then your beauty makes them hide their heads with envy. For one kiss from those sweet lips I would—"

"Ein cigar! ein mineral!"

"(Confound that boy!) Dost love me, dearest, as I love you? Wouldst join your fate to mine? Could you consent to go hand in hand with me through life, banqueting on love and feasting on—"

"Pretzels for two!"

"(Oh, hang your pretzels!) What would life be without thee? It would be as a barren desert without one oasis—a long dismal night uncheered by one single star; cast adrift upon the wide and lonely ocean, with no friendly land in view from day to day, and all the while the fierce hunger in my heart crying—"

"Bolacca woost!"

"Fire and blazes! Lize, let's get out of this."

They got—Cincinnati Saturday Night.

Prohibition in Kansas.

"All aboard!" yelled the conductor, but his seven passengers who had alighted to stretch their legs on the platform did not stir. Some depot hanger on had told them that this station was the last before crossing the Kansas border, and it seemed as if some common impulse or affection held them all spell-bound.

"All aboard!" the conductor cried again and the train started. The seven passengers made a spasmodic attempt to reach it, but the attempt was too spiritless. Only two of them found footing on the hind steps of the sleeper. These were Kansas City drummers, and they came on into the day car looking very dejected.

"It is a dry time," said the fat passenger.

"I pause to ruminate," said the man in the linen coat, pensively chewing a bit of licorice root.

"The drama is decaying," said the sad passenger.

"Don't whine," said the woman who talks bass.

"I'll sit beside her," volunteered the boy who sells peanuts.

We have crossed, over into the land of milk and honey," said one of the drummers, feebly endeavoring to keep up with the procession.

"Now you're screaming!" remarked his companion.

"Loggerheads," observed the man on the wood-box, as the train halted at a tank. "The engine is going to be gin-and-water."—Burdette.

"Ah! Then,"

He rapped at the chief clerk's window and put on a brow of sixteen years in State prison, as he began:

"Sir, several days ago I dropped a letter into this office directed to Pontiac—to John Smith, of Pontiac."

"Yes, sir, I presume so."

"That letter contained a ten-dollar bill."

"Yes, sir."

"And it never reached Pontiac."

"Ah! it didn't?"

"No, sir! That letter, sir, was doubtless lost."

"Wait a minute," replied the clerk, as he stepped away. When he returned he exhibited the letter, which was not only unstamped, but simply addressed: "John Smith, Michigan."

"Is that it?" he asked.

"Yes, sir—that is—ahem, sir—yes, sir, that's the letter, and I'm an ass, sir, and good-day, sir!"—Free Press.

To give an idea of the immensity of the spirit trade in the country it may be stated that the amount appropriated by Government for the maintaining of store-keepers and gaugers alone is above $1,500,000, and the number of distilleries registered and operated above 3,000.

For seven years a Chicago boot and shoe clerk presided over three households in different parts of the city, and that on a salary of only $15 per week. What's the use of sighing for millions?

FARM NOTES.

Sheep in Large Flocks.—The agricultural editor of The Farmers Union and Weekly Tribune learned by experience a few years since, that it would not answer to keep sheep in large flocks. Out of a flock of a little less than 1,100 head, that he was interested in he lost in one winter 548 head, while his loss when his flock was from 300 to 500 head did not average 2 per cent. per year. When sheep run in large flocks, every sheep travels over more ground than it can keep clean. Many farmers, who keep in pastures, and as that ground is usually traveled over daily, the less the numbers are the better it will be for the sheep, even if the pastures are ever so good. Were we to embark again in wool-growing, we would not, from our previous experience, keep over two hundred head in a flock. That is to say, if we had a thousand head, we should keep them in five separate flocks.

Hints on Milking Cows.—A man who had done his own milking employed a boy to do it; he shrank the milk one-third in two weeks. The owner resumed the milking and in two weeks got the same as before. Afterward he set a hired man to milk, and he shrank the milk ten per cent. in two weeks; and in two weeks more, the owner milking again, got as much as before. This man does the work quickly and milks very clean. He closes the fore finger and thumb around the teat high up, and makes a downward motion, tightening the grip and forcing out the milk; then lets go his hold, keeping the thumb and finger in circle, carries up the hand and closes the thumb against the index, and closes and pulls down as before, and so repeats until done. The philosophy, if any, is to give as near as may be the same motion that the calf does in sucking. Many a good cow is partially spoiled of her good qualities in consequence of being improperly milked.

Farmers, Keep Accounts.—Farmers are prone to neglect this important matter, and by such negligence are liable to a great many disappointments, in the shape of store and other bills, which when presented are a surprise to them, and has a tendency to create a suspicion on their part that the merchants are not honest, while on the other hand their families are loaded for extravagance. Receipts and expenditures are never noted; the profits and losses in any branch of farming are unknown; unconsciously debts multiply; for it requires much less time and ability to dispose of money than to acquire it. Accounts properly kept would admonish them when they could afford to spend and when to check up. Carelessness in any particular is apt to foster and beget carelessness in others. The fact is, every farmer should have his journal and ledger, and keep his accounts as promptly and correctly as the merchant.

Extra Food for Hogs.—Coal ashes and clay are bedders for hogs when slant up to fattening. Hogs are fond of cinders, coal ashes and clay, and improve in condition in eating a certain portion of them every day. Some persons are unable to account for this singular propensity in swine. Poultry are very fond of egg shells, lime, sand, and it is well known these substances are necessary in order to form the shells of eggs, and to furnish material for bones for fowls. Now, it is reasonable to suppose that swine eat ashes for the purpose of supplying the material for their bones, and this singular instinct in animals so low in the scale of intelligence is truly wonderful, for ashes contain ingredients which are necessary to form bones; clay, silica, coal, soft lime, stone and rotten wood with their food, which contain the necessary ingredients; but when they are penned up they endeavor to supply the material necessary for keeping up their frames by devouring ashes and cinders. Let them have plenty of them.

Meat from Domestic Animals.—The amount of meat obtained from a domestic animal sold by its live weight is variable, and few persons are aware of it. As a rule, the race and condition of the animal, besides a number of other circumstances, affect the result, and that certain animals yield as much as 70 per cent. of meat, while others give 50 per cent. The mean weight produced, however, is calculated at 58 per cent. of the live weight in beef cattle. In the case of sheep the proportion is from 40 to 50 per cent. From these experiments it appears that the different products obtained from oxen and sheep are as follows: Any of the live weight of 1,332 pounds yields meat, 774 lbs; ribs, 110.2; grease, 87; blood, 55.1; feet and hoofs, 22; head, 11; tongue, 6.6; lungs and heart, 15.33; liver and spleen, 20.05; intestines, 66.15; loss and evaporation, 154.352, making the total 1,332 pounds. The product from a sheep weighing 110.2 pounds are: Meat, 55.11 pounds; skin, 7.713; grease, 5.51; blood, 4.408; feet and hoofs, 2.204; head, 1.408; intestines, 6.613; loss and evaporation, 19.836, making the total of 110.2 pounds.

Save the Sorghum Seed.—A few years ago the value of sorghum seed was not generally known nor appreciated. Farmers, when harvesting the sorghum, would leave the seed lying on the ground; if the chickens or hogs ate it, all right; or if nothing got it it was all right. In agricultural papers of to-day, sorghum seed is highly recommended as food for horses, hogs, chickens, etc. This is a step in the right direction. "Fiddle cakes made of sorghum flour are junk in taste, and of a milder and better flavor. A person might easily be deceived, thinking he was eating buckwheat cakes, when in reality they were made of sorghum flour. Some of the 'superior brands of buckwheat flour' we frequently see advertised, are made from sorghum seed. One way of curing the seed is, take it when the sorghum is harvested and scatter it on the grass where it can not be disturbed, leave it there a couple of weeks or so. A few showers will not hurt it but if it is scattered too thick, it should be turned occasionally to prevent molding. When it is thoroughly dry haul it onto the barn floor, and when it has cured enough, thrash the seed out and run it through the windmill. It is then ready to be ground to flour. Cook it the same as buckwheat flour. A crop of sorghum will yield from twenty to forty bushels of seed to the acre.

Grass and a Pound of Meat.—It is stated on good authority that an acre of the best Lincolnshire grazing land in this country famous for its grass—will carry an ox and a sheep "from New Mayday till Old Michaelmas," and that while grazing during this period the former will gain 280 pounds and the latter 40 pounds in net weight of meat when slaughtered. The acre will thus yield 320 pounds of meat. Its produce of grass may be sixteen tons, perhaps more. This is one pound of meat for every cent of grass, but we must remember that the grass of such land differs from the average in the quantity of its yield. We have not the least idea of the estimates would be in the country, or in the Northwest, of the quantity of beef or mutton. The results of course, would be varied by moist and dry seasons, and by the quality of the grasses with which the pasture is stocked. The aptitude of the animal for fattening would also affect the result. It is claimed that in Montana the buffalo grass is considered the richest of all grasses for fattening purposes, it being quite equal for fattening animals to feeding corn in addition to most of the grasses in the West.

Barley for Feeding.—In this country barley is used mainly for brewing; in European and Eastern countries it is fed to stock, particularly horses. As compared to oats it is more nutritious and less heating. The product of an acre of barley is of more value as food for horses or other animals than the product of an acre of oats of equal quality. The grain being harder when dry than oats, it can not be consumed so well in a raw state, but if fed ground it should be soaked in water or beer before being ground and fed in conjunction with cut fodder, there is nothing superior as food for working teams. Barley to keep the system open and the skin soft. So long as our American farmers grow barley with no use for it in view but milking, so long will it be subject to extreme fluctuations in price, and the business is a risky and uncertain one for the grower. But when the value of it for feeding stock is realized the markets will be steadier and the profits of the grower increased. Many farmers grow both barley and oats, the one to sell and the other to feed. It would be wiser, if the soil is good for barley—as most all soil are—to grow a portion at least for feeding purposes in each of oats. Ground barley is an excellent food for fattening hogs. We know from actual experience that it will perform as much labor as 1.40 on barley as they do when fed oats. During the Mexican war all the grain that horses and mules had from the time the army left Jalapa for the interior was barley and corn, but mostly barley. Cavalry horses as well as those used for teaming purposes, could not have been in better condition than they were. —Minneapolis Tribune.

Household Helps.
A Day in the Laundry.
A lady at Syracuse, N. Y., sends the following interesting letter to the Tribune: "I have been a 'Washing Made Easy'! Blue Monday, that used to harass the mother, torment the husband and drive the children out doors, is now made comparatively easy. Soak the clothes over night in warm water with plenty of good washing soap. The next morning wash them from the water (with a little hot poured in) into another of very hot water. If two can work at this it will be a much shorter method. Rub these out and put into a third tub; pour hot water on these to scald them. Then wring them into a tub of clear cold water—an iron bag is better than all the patent bluing—and the cloth will be clean and white. Of course it will not be necessary to have four tubs; two will be enough, and if you have a good wringer it will not take long to do out quite a large washing. There is a great difference in wringers, and each time they are used they should be dried carefully and a drop of oil put on the eggs or wheels. Then if the clothes are taken down at night and sprinkled well, they will iron easily. The best sprunker is a wisp broom, kept for this purpose only. Indel, so strong is the wringer, that it will spin the clothes, and finally, without a pool of water in one place and none in others.

To Make Good Starch.
Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of starch in a little cold water; when it is a smooth paste, pour in boiling water slowly, and stir briskly to keep from lumping. The exact quantity of water will depend on the quality of starch, a pint to each ounce is a fair average; add a good teaspoonful of salt, a drop of bluing, and half a teaspoonful of lard. (M.M.) For color goods put a little alum in the starch. Boil for twenty minutes by the clock. A clean bright pan and spoon should be kept purposely for making starch. Strain if not perfectly smooth when done, and if it has to stand before using, cover the pan to prevent a scum forming, and keep it hot. It should be used as hot as the hand can possibly bear, in order that it may better penetrate the linen; for the same reason the starch must not be made too thick. It must be rubbed in until the linen is completely saturated, and none is left unabsorbed on the surface. In mild weather starch the clothes from the rinsing water; in cold or windy weather dry them on a rack, and iron them as soon as possible. After the linen is perfectly dry, and a couple of hours before it is to be ironed, mix a tablespoonful of starch in a little cold water. Add a little salt and a piece of borax, the size of a hazel nut, dissolved in boiling water. Mix the starch thus prepared with enough water to dip the bosoms, cuffs and collars. Fold these parts inside and roll the shirts up tight in a clean dry cloth. Iron the back, sleeves, cuffs and collar, then put the shirt on a shirt board and smooth out the bosom. Rub it hard with a fine cloth wrung out of hot water. Iron rapidly with a clean hot iron, then raise the plait and iron again. It will be wise for those who are not experienced to do this first ironing with a piece of thin muslin laid over the surface. In either case, after the whole bosom is done, rub the surface with the damp cloth and iron again, without covering, repeating this operation until the work is satisfactory. Do not move the bosom until the ironing is completely finished and the linen perfectly stiff and dry.

Polishing Fluid and Irons.
Dissolve two ounces of powdered gum arabic in a pint of boiling water; when cool stir in half an ounce of carbonate of magnesia, and after it has settled bottle the clear fluid for use. When the shirts are all ironed, put the first one on the shirt board, and with a fine cloth moistened with the fluid go over the surface of the part to be polished, applying the hot polishing iron as soon as possible afterwards. If any parts become too dry before ironing, moisten them again, and repeat the operation. The polishing iron must be used quickly and lightly. A nickle-plated one is best, and care should be taken never to let it become too hot.

To Wash Nice Lace Edgings.
Cover the outside of a large glass bottle smoothly with soft white cotton, linen or flannel. Wrap the lace around it, basting each edge carefully with very fine thread. Fasten a piece of thin muslin or net over the outside of the lace. Soak the bottle in tepid water for an hour or two, then wash in soap suds until clean, after which lay it in clear water for twelve hours, changing it once or twice during that time. To finish take it from the water and dry by wiping it with a towel, then dip the lace in rice water and roll it in a fresh towel. While still damp take the lace carefully from the bottle, and placing it between clean white cloths, iron until completely dry.

Washing Nice Laces.
Nice laces may be carefully washed and with much more satisfaction, than it sent to a lace renovator or washer, by making a strong soap suds and filling a shallow platter full of the soapy water. Then double the lace twice and lay it in the water so that every part is completely covered. Put this out in the sun for a couple of days, changing the water several times during the day. Lift it out carefully each time and do not wring or rinse it. When completely clean starch it on a piece of white cloth in the house, carefully rolling it before it gets quite dry. Sprinkling it carefully with the tip of a fine fruit knife will improve its looks, but never iron or starch it. It is a kind of lace that should be a little stiff, put the least bit of gum arabic in the last water, or a little sugar. Even if you only put it in the soap suds and dry it, it will look very nicely. Gasoline washes silk lace very nicely, as it also does ribbons, handkerchiefs and silk stockings.
